Numina MedLegal provides medical record review, medical record sorting, indexing, chronologies and summaries produced from our wholly owned ISO 27001:2013 certified facilities by a team of over 250 clinical professionals.

We work to your client's specifications and timeframes.

Each complete medical records file is organized chronologically by GP's, hospitalists, or other practitioners, and paginated for ease of reference with a bidirectional hyper-linked index. Every document in the file is rigorously examined and reviewed, and a detailed chronology is created. Duplicate and non-relevant documents are removed and illegible records are identified. We provide a schedule of all records reviewed. The chronology identifies times of treatment, all pertinent medical issues pre- and post-event, all diagnostics, lab results, consultations, procedures, operative reports, primary care records, and clinical and hospital encounters. All other categories of records are also collated, such as education, social services records, prison records, nursing home records, and more. The chronology is fully referenced to the index and can include a summary of the key medical facts in the chronology.
